

TWO HELD IN BANK ROBBERY

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

NATURE sometimes succeeds where the best efforts of men fail. Old Mother Nature, blasting the wheat fields of the Middle West with drouth and dust-storms, may do what Secretary Wallace thus far has been unable to do—reduce the carry-over in wheat and restore substantial prices for grain.

UNDERHILL KILLED

Kidnap Terrors Meet Violent End During Last Year

This is the third of six absorbing stories telling how bullet, rape, and prison cell have ended the careers of notorious bandits of the past and relating the records and giving detailed descriptions of the "most wanted" criminals of today.

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Temporary success of the Dillingers, Floyds, and Barrows of banditry in defying the law can not obscure the fact that an unheard-of number of big-time bandits came face to face with the last roundup during the last year. At least five "big-shot" bandits went down under police gunfire, two were killed by their own kind, and at least four more were behind bars.

There were 12 bullets in the dying body of Wilbur Underhill when armed guards carried him through the gates of Oklahoma State prison.

Underhill had cut a desperate trail through three states—Missouri, Kansas, and Oklahoma. He was one of four brothers who were all criminals.

He killed one man during a Christmas night drug store holdup at Okmulgee, Okla.; murdered a deputy sheriff and a policeman who sought to capture him.

He was one of 11 convicts who broke from the Kansas State Penitentiary, kidnaping the warden.

Target of Relentless Hunt

Half a dozen bank robberies were blamed on Underhill shortly after the Kansas escape, and he is believed also to have taken part in the machine-gun attack on a prison convoy at Kansas City's Union Station Plaza, in which five men were massacred.

So the law clung to his trail relentlessly. Ill and half-clad, he barely escaped a raid on a farm house near Shawnee, Okla. One of his confederates, Gene Johnston, was shot to death by police at Springtown, Ark.

The law closed in on a house in the heart of Shawnee. Visited at midnight, it showed no signs of occupancy. But the law returned, and found lights. Through a lighted window the law challenged: "Stick 'em up!"

Underhill whirled, grabbed a gun from a table, and fired through the window. A fusillade of lead tore through the house, killing a woman who was with Underhill. Underhill ran from the house in a spray of bullets, fell, rose, and ran on.

The End of "Big Boy"

Sixteen blocks he carried those bullets, and was found hiding in a shed in the rear of a furniture store. He died shortly afterward.

Similar was the end of Bob "Big Boy" Brady, outlaw and prison breaker, who had been a companion of Underhill in the Kansas break, Brady's third prison escape.

Only a few weeks after Underhill's death, Brady was run to earth by a sheriff's posse near Paola, Kan., with three other escapees who had been making their way across country on foot, walking by night, hiding by day. A farmer spotted them, turned in a report, and quickly a posse gathered.

Brady tried to fight. He leveled a sawed-off shotgun, but the sheriff's men were quicker, and he went down full of the charges of two shotguns.

The other three were easily captured.

Collegian Turns Kidnap

"Hansome Jack" Klutas could think of nothing better to do with a college education than to start a kidnaping ring. The former University of Illinois student pulled off a half dozen kidnapings, said to have netted him nearly a half million dollars.

Klutas got away with it for several years, making elaborate efforts to evade the law by operations to alter his facial appearance and his fingerprints.

He lived in apparent respectability, his accomplice, Russell Hughes, did the same, sporting a false mustache, and changing the style of his hair and clothes.

But that did not prevent a sharp-eyed policeman from recognizing Hughes as he stood loafing at the door.

Big Crop in South; Drouth in West

Plenty of Rain in Dixie; Dust Storm Clouds the West

Carolinas and Tennessee Only Dry Threat, and Not Serious

WHEAT CROP GONE

Grain Rises Limit for Day—Dust Clouds Missouri-Arkansas Line

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—While drouth conditions prevailed throughout the Middle West, sending wheat and corn prices soaring, prospects of abundant crops grown with the aid of generally normal weather faced Southern farmers Friday.

In only three states, the Carolinas and Tennessee, was dry weather heard of, while three others, Georgia, Florida and Louisiana, had too much rain.

The outlook was not alarming in the three dry states, with small fruits and grains being the main sufferers.

Bell weevils and potato bugs are keeping out of sight in Arkansas, where 95 per cent of the land was planted or ready for planting under just the right amount of sun and rain.

Dust Blankets West

CHICAGO—Belief that the long-continued drouth in the midcontinent will result in a serious curtailment of farm crops grew as thick clouds of smoky dust borne on strong winds swept across the Mississippi river and enveloped the North Central states as far as central Ohio.

Reports Thursday night said that the cloud was in evidence at Fort Smith and Fayetteville, Ark., and was particularly dense in Poplar Bluff and other portions of southeast Missouri.

On the Chicago Board of Trade, wheat buyers, convinced that the crop had been almost irreparably injured, drove the price up the limit of five cents a bushel for the day, with May wheat closing at 90 1/2 cents. Wheat prices have risen 15 cents in two weeks. Corn and oats rose more than two cents a bushel and rye and barley had sharp advances.

Weather reports from the world's greatest grain growing territory showed that in the past 24 hours, there had been no indication that the drouth was coming to an end. Light snows fell in Illinois, Wisconsin, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas. These were regarded as of little value agriculturally.

No Rain Anticipated

Forecasters were in general for fair and cool weather, with no more rain anticipated. In Washington the Agriculture Department officials, who announced an estimate as of May 1, showing a loss in a month of 30,000,000 bushels of the winter wheat crop, were hoping for a downpour that would relieve farmers.

The crop for this year was estimated at 451,471,000 bushels, or almost 200,000,000 bushels under the 10-year average production of 651,000,000 bushels. Condition of the crop on May 1 was reported at 70.9 per cent of the normal, compared with 74.3 per cent a month ago, and 55.5 a year ago.

Dust Storm Unprecedented

The new dust storm was said by meteorologists to be without precedent in the past 20 years, in intensity and in area involved. The clouds swept from the Canadian plains across the border to cover practically all the states east of Montana and as far south as Texas. The lower Ohio valley also was in the grip of the dust. It was believed that by dawnbreak the clouds would reach the Alleghenies.

Airplane service between Chicago and St. Paul was interrupted. Pilots said that the dust was found as high as 10,000 feet and that it was sweeping eastward at the rate of 60 to 100 miles an hour in the upper air.

Soil Swept Away

The soil from the West is much drier than usual and the winds high. Almost incredible stories were told of the vast distance some of the dust particles travel. An amateur scientist in Garden City, Kan., where dust storms are no rarity, discovered a new red kind sweeping into his house and found that it came from Mexico.

Dr. E. Vernon Hill, air conditioning expert and editor of the magazine Aerologist, made a test of the air's dust content at Clark and Washington streets and figured there were 308,350 particles to the cubic foot. Of these about 20 per cent appeared to have an origin in smoke and the other 80 per cent were loam. Forest fires in the Northwest, particularly in Wisconsin, were raging. The normal count in Chicago is only about 120,000 to the cubic foot.

Negro Jackson Is Executed Friday

Slayer, 3 Times Reprieved, Put to Death as Alibis Fail

TUCKER PRISON FARM—(AP)—The executioner's switch, which three times was played by Luther Dean Jackson, negro, by Governor Futrell's clemency orders, Friday snuffed out the life of the convicted slayer.

Extensive investigations of Jackson's alibis were made at the governor's orders and the negro was saved once as he was ready to go to the chair.

He went to the chair at 5:15 o'clock Friday morning, and after two shocks was pronounced dead by the prison physician at 5:20.

Control Urged for Insects in Garden

County Agent Stanley Gives Advice in War Against Pests

In response to many requests for information on control of garden insects County Agent Frank Stanley Friday recommended the following control measures:

"Garden insects are divided into two classes, according to their feeding habits. The first class are those that chew their food, such as cut worms, tomato and cabbage worms, and some beetles. The second class are those that have sucking mouth parts, such as plant lice, thrips, squash bugs, and leaf aphids. It is necessary to know the type of injury being done before control measures can be recommended.

As a general recommendation, any insect that eats the leaf or any part of the plant can be controlled by poisoning. On the other hand if the insect does its damage by puncturing the plant and sucking the juices, it will have to be killed by applying the poison to the insect.

"Cut worms do great damage in early spring and summer before they are noticed, especially is this true on young cabbage plants. The first damage noticed is a leaf cut off on young cabbage plants or a young tomato plant cut down at the ground. These worms are night feeders and by looking carefully they can be found and killed. As a rule they are hidden in the soil close to where the damage was done. Another remedy is to use poison bran made as follows: Mix 1 quart of bran and 1 tablespoon of white arsenic or Paris green. Then add 1/2 pint of water and a little sorghum or other cheap molasses. Mix thoroughly, adding only enough liquid to make a crumbly mass. Unless the poison is well mixed and distributed, it will not be effective. Ten to 15 pounds of bait to the acre is enough for one application.

"Cabbage worms, tomato worms, potato bugs, and other such chewing insects which feed on the whole plant can be controlled by thorough spraying or dusting with some arsenical poison. The poison can be put on as a liquid or as a dust. The two most commonly used are prepared as follows:

"(1) Liquid calcium arsenate or lead arsenate spray: Calcium arsenate or lead arsenate, 4 tablespoonsful; Air-slaked lime, 2 cupsful; Water, 3 gallons.

"(2) Lime-Arsenate Dust: Air-slaked lime, 5 pounds; Lead arsenate or calcium arsenate, 1 pound. Thoroughly mix in a closed container.

"Hand picking to remove egg masses or to kill the first worms that appear if started early, has proved satisfactory. There is no danger of poisoning the consumer of cabbage by the use of calcium arsenate to kill worms. The outside leaves are always removed and what little arsenic is left on the plant is washed off when the cabbage is prepared for eating."

Four different cities have occupied the site of the city of Jericho, 15 miles from Jerusalem, according to excavations made at this point.

Woman Arrested for Kidnaping of Gettle, Oil Man

Los Angeles Police Believe Case Will Be Solved at Once

RANSOM IS $75,000

Gettle's Friends Are Given Quick Word From Snatch Gang

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(AP)—Ransom of $75,000 has been demanded for the release of William F. Gettle who was kidnaped from his Beverly Hills home district, the attorney general's office announced late Friday.

Ernest E. Noon, attorney for Mrs. Gettle, informed District Attorney Fife he had received a telephone call from a party who informed him Gettle was alive.

Woman Arrested

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(AP)—The sheriff's office announced Friday the detention of a woman in connection with the kidnaping of William F. Gettle, millionaire oil man.

The woman, described as about 30 and well dressed, fell into the police dragnet early Friday morning along with six other persons who also were questioned.

After examining the woman, Captain Norris Stensland, the sheriff's extortion expert, announced that he thought the police "had something" and that: "We will have this solved within five hours."

So far as is known, no ransom demand has been made by the two gunmen who invaded Gettle's luxurious estate and "snatched" his after a midnight swimming party.

The family's ransom offer, accompanied by the announced desire to deal direct with the kidnapers, was made by Ernest E. Noon, Beverly Hills lawyer.

Unghard but on the alert, three men waited Thursday night at the big, rambling country mansion of Gettle, hoping to receive some signal from the abductors indicating what steps should be taken to ransom him.

After a swim, Gettle's brother-in-law of the victim, A. E. Fox, a broker, and William J. Drewes, friends of the family, who quickly signified willingness to pay "any reasonable" ransom.

Leaders of the search, carried on by every law enforcement agency in southern California, said the abduction had all the earmarks of "big time" snatches. The manner in which the two masked, armed men did the job smoothly and deliberately was one factor in this belief.

After a swim in the pool of Gettle's newly-acquired estate, all members of the party except Gettle and James P. Wolf, Westwood furniture dealer, returned to the house.

Host and guest went to the recreation hall to change from their bathing clothes. Footsteps were heard on the walk outside and a soft voice said: "Put 'em up, gentlemen."

Abductors Appear

Looking up, Gettle and Wolf saw two young men, masked with handkerchiefs and armed with pistols. Apparently they were Americans.

The gunmen ordered Gettle and Wolf to continue their conversation as they marched them past the swimming pool to the east wall of the estate, 100 yards away. Wolf thought it was a holdup and tossed his purse into the shrubbery nearby. The gunmen said nothing until the seven-foot stone wall surmounted by barbed wire was reached.

Then one of the masked men announced: "This is not a heist (holdup)—it is a snatch."

Gettle pleaded vainly: "I will give you all the money I have on me, and go into the house for more if that isn't enough."

The kidnappers laughed. "That won't be enough," they said. "This is a kidnaping, fellow."

Use Ladder

Against the wall was a stepladder—one which had been seen on the grounds several days before. Caretakers thought it belonged there. Gettle and Wolf's and Gettle's neckties and bound their hands, then then strengthened the bonds with adhesive tape. Both were gagged and hobbled.

They tied Wolf to a tree and carried Gettle, who weighs about 200 pounds up the stepladder and dropped him over the wall. Wolf heard him groan as he hit the ground on the other side.

"Don't be so soft," admonished one of the kidnappers as he jumped from the top of the wall to the other side. The other turned to Wolf and said: "Stay where you are for an hour or we'll kill you. This is no stickup."

Insull's Friends and Surety Company Free Him on Big Bond

Accused Utility King Walks Out of Jail After Successful Struggle to Raise $200,000, and $50,000 State Bond

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Samuel Insull was freed from custody by the federal government Friday, $200,000 bond having been supplied by a surety company after he declined to plead guilty or not guilty to indictment which charged him with fraudulent use of the mails and violating the bankruptcy laws.

After leaving the federal courtroom he was taken in custody by deputies to the West Side courthouse where he was expected to provide $50,000 bond on state charges, and then freed.

Insull refused to admit jurisdiction of the court when he appeared before the federal judge, and the petition signed by him made it clear that he was appearing against his will solely to protest against detention.

Judge Philip L. Sullivan gave the defendant until June 18 to attack his indictment, after federal attorneys said this would be satisfactory to the government.

Says He Was "Shanghaied"

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Mr. Insull will ask for an explanation of his status" said Attorney Thompson Thursday, "before he pleads guilty or not guilty to the government's charges."

Four Are Initiated by Athletic Group

Spraggins, Green, Keith and England Declared New Members

At a special assembly program Friday morning at the high school four boys were initiated into the National Athletic Scholarship Society. Those who were taken into the organization were:

Hendrix Spraggins, letter man in basketball and track; Billy Green, football and track; Hugh Keith, track; and Leonard England, basketball.

Coach Teddy Jones was in charge of the program and conducted the initiation of the new members. Assistant coach Jimmy Jones read the constitution of the organization, and speeches were heard from Hendrix Spraggins, representing the Athletic Society, and Syd McMath, representing the athletic supporters of the community.

A good deal of emphasis was placed upon the relation of scholarship to athletics, and the importance of athletics achieving an impressive record in school. The requirements of the organization are: An athlete must be a letter man in at least one major sport; must maintain a grade average equal to that of the average of the school; and must be an active leader in class and school activities.

Coach Jones announced that hereafter no letters would be awarded to an athlete unless he passed in three subjects at the end of the semester in which he participated. This plan is followed in many of the larger schools and is being inaugurated here in an effort to make athletes raise their scholastic standing.

Members of the Athletic Scholarship Society, which is the largest honorary organization in the United States composed of 1300 chapters in the several states, since its installation in Hope are as follows: 1929-1930 Ronald Smith, Robert Lee, Graves, Byron Evans, 1930-1931 Talbot, Feldt, Edward Schooley, David McKee, 1931-1932, None, 1932-1933, Willis Smith, Carl Green, Carl Schooley, Lane Taylor, 1933-1934, Hendrix Spraggins, Billy Green, Leonard England, and Hugh Keith.

Bert Waddell Is Identified After Local Police Raid

Will Green Also Held as Hope Officers Make Texarkana Coup

TRACE BANDIT CAR

Local Police Follow License Number to Waddell's Home

Swooping down on a Texarkana home at daybreak Friday morning, Hope and Texarkana officers arrested two men in connection with the $250 robbery of the Bank of Blevins, one of whom was identified as the bandit who rifled the cash drawers of the bank Thursday morning while a companion stood guard with a revolver.

The two are, Bert Waddell and Will Green, both Texarkana men. Waddell was identified by Cashier P. C. Stephens and Earl White as one of the actual bandits. Green is held as an accessory to the robbery.

Both were returned to Hope Friday afternoon and placed in the city jail. A third man whose identity is known to officers is sought as Waddell's accomplice in the robbery. Officers expect his arrest within the next 24 hours.

Local Police Win

Instrumental in the quick round up of the two men was Chief of Police Clarence Baker of Hope, aided by Night Policemen Homer Burke, also of this city.

Acting on a not tip, Baker and Burke left Hope at 11 o'clock Thursday night for Texarkana where they traced the automobile license of the car used in the robbery to its owner, Will Green.

An all-night surveillance was kept on the Waddell and Green home. Early Friday morning Green was seen. He was trailed about Texarkana which led to the Waddell home. Sheriff Turquette of Miller county, Baker and Burke surrounded the home. Baker rapped on the door and demanded entrance. He was met at the door by Waddell's wife who refused him admittance.

Waddell made an attempt to escape through a rear door but was met by officers and turned back. Baker had made his way into the house, picking up a revolver beside of Waddell's bed. The bank robber and his wife scuffled with Baker for possession of the gun. By this time Officer Burke had entered, seizing Waddell around the neck. Sheriff Turquette stepped in and "covered" Waddell, his wife and Green. They offered no more resistance.

A search of the house failed to reveal any loot taken in the Blevins holdup.

Waddell Identified

Cashier P. C. Stephens and Earl White who were kidnaped following the robbery were notified of the arrests. They went to Texarkana where they identified Waddell.

At first Green told officers that his car had been in storage at Texarkana the day of the robbery. Later he told of furnishing the automobile to Waddell to make a trip to Prescott, saying that Waddell was going there to visit relatives.

Waddell admitted the trip to Prescott Thursday, but denied any connection with the bank robbery.

The clue which led to arrests was furnished by a Prescott filling station operator. The car used in the robbery stopped at the Prescott station late Thursday afternoon for gas. The two occupants aroused the attendant's suspicion. While filling the car with

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

New Dealers to Go Daffy on Art ...
Mrs. Troyanovsky Discovers the Bums' Rush ...
Tourists Sneak a Camera Snap in First Lady's Car.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Lately this capital has become a downright socially uncomfortable place for those who have no opinions as between the classical and modern schools of art nor any appreciations of the difference between chiaroscuro and pastel.

All the New Dealers have gone daffy on art.

The public works art division is the center of excitement. It's the recovery branch which put thousands of artists at work painting for their country and it picked 500 of the best paintings and sculptures for an exhibit here which has caused even more stir than the annual cherry blossoms.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt, the cabinet, congress, and the other big boys were let in at special previews and previewing and told they could select pictures to hang on office and corridor walls. After the Roosevelt had picked 30 for the White House, there was a general scramble which now is embarrassing, since many officials are demanding the same pictures.

For instance Professor Tugwell chose about 50 and wants as many as he can get for the Agriculture Department, but some he wants are also sought by Undersecretary of State Phillips, Republican House Leader Bert Snell, Speaker Rainey and Senator Metcalf. There are many other conflicts which probably will be settled on a basis of official precedence.

As if that weren't enough to talk about, the navy officially declared war on "The Fleet's In," a painting of sailors and girls, and Dr. Tugwell publicly aired his pain acquired from contemplation of Gilbert White's new pastoral mural at the Department of Agriculture, only to have Secretary Wallace endorse it.

Thus the navy and Wallace were left in the classical school and Tugwell and the army in the modern school, with the rest of many clamorous bidders for "The Fleet's In" was West Point.

So many people have had fun fighting these various art wars that one fears more are brewing.

Rushin' the Russians

Mrs. Troyanovsky, the Russian ambassador's wife, has had her first "at home." She expected 200 women to drop in, but prepared for 300 just in case.

Nearly a thousand came and swamped the embassy. The League of American Pen Women, which happened to be conventioning here, arrived in bus loads. So did a convention of nurses. The sandwich table was almost instantaneously swept bare. All the gals were yelling for Russian caviar. But only the early comers had any luck.

Sneaking a Bit of Fame

Among the things tourists are taking away from Washington are snapshots of themselves sitting in Mrs. Roosevelt's famous blue roadster in the front driveway. Many jump in, get snapped and jump out while the cop isn't looking. ... Hearings on the much better chance since Indian self-rule bill, which has a much better chance since F. D. endorsed it publicly, reveal existence of such little known tribes as the Muckleshoos, Squaxon Islanders, Chuekchans, Skokomishes, Skykomishes, Puyallups and Quilleyeutes—most of them on the northern Pacific coast. ... Bob Jackson, former Democratic committee secretary and commonly deemed the high priest of lobbyists, holds court nightly in the Mayflowers cocktail lounge. The other night he was parked with Solicitor General J. Crawford Biggs and former American Legion Commander Ralph O'Neil, one of the lobbyists now barred from the War Department. ... Congressman Goss, munitions industry lobbyist from Connecticut, was discussing possible future careers with 9-year-old Jack Greenway, son of Congresswoman Isabella Greenway from Arizona. Goss said: "I wouldn't want to say anything, Jack, that might influence you to become a lawyer." Jack replied calmly: "Go right ahead and say whatever you like. I'm used to having the facts presented to me and then making up my mind." A. C. Dixon, deputy administrator for the lumber and timber products code, is former president and organizing genius of the Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumberman—a company union. ... The man who used to be bootlegger for this office building says Chairman Choate of FACA may be right when he says bootlegging is still a huge national problem, but that more than two-thirds of Washington's illegal salesmen have quit the business.

If you sit out there and mope it is vain to cherish hope. If you spend your day in wishing, never broken dreams you'll find. Through the skies above are dream, it's by faith and strength and cheer. And by everlasting trying that man's troubles soonest end. So to me this life appears, when come dark and dangerous years, Not by whiners and by grumblers, or the fearful and afraid. But by faithful men and true with the gift to dare and do. And the willingness to battle are the better fortunes made.—E. A. G.

INSULL'S FRIENDS

after a second federal judge, Judge Will M. Sparks, had refused to cut Insull's bond, even though told it was the highest in American court history. "Bond is not intended as a punishment," said the judge. "But the government is entitled to assurance that Mr. Insull will be on hand for the trial. I will refuse his application for a reduction of bond. If Insull's friends will not stand good for $200,000, they should not ask this court to stand the burden." After collecting the federal bond Insull must dig up $300,000 more on state indentments.

Insull to Fight
Insull, lounging comfortably in a wheel chair throne in the county jail's hospital, heard the news without excitement. "You decided what to do," he told his son. The son said later: "You have no idea how many of my father's friends have come to the front for him. The close friends may not be able to schedule enough property"—(property worth between $500,000 and $1,000,000 was needed)—"and we are now receiving voluntary offers from his acquaintances."

Insull showed a flash of fire Thursday in talking about his case. "I have been made a scapegoat by financial collapse," he said. "It's a nervous time when there will be a showdown."

The question Insull's attorney will raise in court Friday—how Insull was taken from his seagoing refuge, the freighter Malotis—brought a chuckle Thursday from Judge Will M. Sparks in the bond hearing.

Hughes, crouched behind a barber chair, died with seven bullets in his body.

It was an ill omen for Klutas. He was living in apparent respectability in a neat brick house at Bellwood, Ill. And when police arrived for the last roundup, Klutas chose to shoot it out.

His body was neatly clothed in striped suit, pearl-gray spats, and a derby hat as it lay before his doorstep when the police guns stopped spitting.

Kenneth Conn was just beginning to build himself quite a reputation as a bank robber when he tried it on the wrong bank. At Allamont, Kan., the cashier of the Labette County State Bank resisted when Conn and a companion stuck up the bank.

Isaac McCarty, the cashier, shot the accomplice with a shotgun. Conn grabbed McCarty's wife and held her in front of him as a shield.

But McCarty dropped the shotgun and picked up a rifle, with which he neatly killed Conn with two well-placed shots which never touched Mrs. McCarty.

Sheriff Snuffs Out Pair
Other budding crime careers which were cut short by a resolute sheriff were those of Sam Ecola and Gus Fasone. They had just shot down a gang enemy from an auto in Kansas City, Mo., when Sheriff Thomas B. Bash happened by in his own car.

Bash swung his machine in front of the handi car and with a riot gun snuffed out Ecola and Fasone before they could raise their weapons.

Two of the slickest of such criminals were removed without danger or trouble to the law when Verne Miller and Gus Winkler were blotted out by their own kind.

Miller, an expert machine gunner with a long string of crimes on his record, was found dead in a ditch near Detroit. He had been the machine gunner in the Kansas City massacre, but he was not even allowed to die by the gun—he had been beaten to death. Winkler, who had

Nation's Typical High School Girl

America's typical high school girl is Treva Scott, Pasadena, Calif., above, if film judges can be believed. She has been chosen from 1,000 contestants to play the lead in a Hollywood production and signed to a long-term contract. Treva was queen of the 1934 Tournament of Roses in her home city last New Year's Day.

acted as go-between for several kidnapping rings, was found shot to death on a Chicago sidewalk.

"Big Shots" Go to Prison
But these men who died with the violence with which they lived were not the only ones whose scores were settled by the law. Four especially fine birds now roost in prisons. Fred Burke, "Machine Gun" Kelly, Albert Bates and Harvey Bailey will do no more murdering or kidnapping.

The last three named were neatly caught and convicted of complicity in the kidnapping of Charles Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man.

Bailey and Bates were the first to get life sentences under the new "Lindbergh kidnapping law." All three are in isolated cells in Fort Leavenworth prison, and are not likely ever to step outside its high walls.

When Fred Burke heard the judge sentence him to hard labor for life in Michigan's Marquette prison, he muttered a low "Thanks!" He had reason to be thankful for Michigan's lack of a death penalty.

After hearing of the Blevins robbery and the description of the car, a maroon Ford V-8, the operator telephoned Sheriff Arlice Pittman. The Nevada sheriff notified Chief Baker. In the meantime Hope officers had received a tip that the automobile was from Texas.

Leaving Prescott the car headed toward Bismarck and is believed to have crossed Red river at Dooley's ferry before reaching Texas.

230 Loans Made
by Prescott Unit
Nevada and Hempstead
Production Association Active

The Prescott Production Credit association has made 230 loans to farmers and stockmen in Nevada and Hempstead counties since its recent organization, according to a statement Friday by E. H. Weaver, secretary-treasurer of the association.

While the minimum amount of a production loan is $50, Mr. Weaver says that the average-sized loan is for several hundred dollars, and a number of production loans up to $1,000 or more have been handled.

So far most of these loans are being used by farmers in this vicinity to purchase livestock, work-stock, seed, fertilizer and farming supplies, although Mr. Weaver says that in some instances farmers have specified in their applications that a part of the money was to be used to hire labor, or pay off an indebtedness incurred for agricultural purposes.

The present interest rate of 5 1/2 percent per annum on production loans is charged only for the time the money is being used, and is payable at the end of the term of the loan. Mr. Weaver says some farmers are saving anywhere from 1 1/2 to 2 percent costs by obtaining loans on an installment basis, having the money advanced to them in amounts as needed during the season. Loans through the association are made for all phases of agricultural financing incident to a farm production. These loans range ordinarily from 3 to 12 months depending on the length of time required for the borrower to grow and market his crops, livestock, or otherwise pay off the loan as required. In certain cases, loans such as those on dairy cattle or breeding cattle may be extended longer, but not for more than three years. Primary security for these loans consists of crop liens and chattel mortgages.

From its office in Prescott the association operates through representatives in the two counties of its territory. The association was organized under the Farm Credit Administration last winter and is intended to be a permanent source of agricultural and livestock credit for this section.

"Killer" Burke, above in chains, gets to a lucky life sentence; while William Underhill, below, awaits the inevitable death he meted out to others.

The list of Burke's crimes was so long, and so bloody that he would have richly earned the gallows in any state which had the death penalty.

Beginning in 1927, Burke went through a series of crimes that ranged from machine gunner in Chicago's disreputable St. Valentine's Day massacre down through forgery and larceny to the cold-blooded murder of a youthful patroness, Charles Skelley, who jumped on the running board of Burke's car to arrest him for a petty traffic offense at St. Joseph, Mich.

Several states sought Burke when he was finally captured, but his luck held, and Michigan won the doubtful honor.

WOMAN ARRESTED

It is a kidnapping. The second gunman dropped over the wall and Wolf heard an automobile start and move away.

Desperately the furniture dealer struggled with his bonds and finally freed himself. Half an hour later he appeared at the house, the tape still holding his mouth shut, and told what had happened.

Gettle, 46, built his fortune from the oil fields of Oklahoma and California, withdrew from the speculative activities before the crash of 1929 and retired to southern California.

Suspect Large Gang
Officers also suspected that the gang was made up of many members besides the two who seized the millionaire. A woman was seen sitting in a car near the gate of the Gettles estate late Wednesday.

DOONNA of the BIG TOP

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DOONNA GABRIEL and MADELINE SIDDAI who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are circus performers. Years earlier Madeline ran away from her grandfather's home.
 When Doonna is injured in a fall from the trapeze Madeline arranges for her to be taken to GRANDFATHER SIDDAI'S farm. To please her partner Doonna pretends to be Madeline. She falls in love with Bill, SIDDAI, Madeline's cousin, and though she is ashamed of deceiving him and Grandfather she is afraid to tell them the truth.
 Meanwhile Madeline marries CON DAVID, animal trainer with the circus. He tells her he is going to put her in his animal act.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XIV

ALMOST before Con David had kissed his bride, the entire circus troupe descended upon them. Down the Pullman aisle came the strange folk, rattles and horns and drums raising a blatant din above the grind of the train wheels and the chug-chug of the engine. Stateroom doors were thrown open. Chairs and cushions were flung into the aisles. Hampers of food and, against all regulations, bottles of wine and beer were produced. Every one from clown to musician, from equestrian star to midget, had something to contribute to the festivity in the way of food or song or story.

When it was time for Con to make a speech it was discovered that he had disappeared. During the merry-making and confusion he had slipped from the car to the one adjoining, thrown himself on a couch in the smoking room and fallen asleep.

His absence was a signal for the crowd to disperse, though none of them realized as Madeline did (since no one else knew that Con did not love her) that the celebration of his wedding was like pouring vinegar into an open wound.

Madeline was pale and weary when she bade the crowd good night. Then she sat down to wait for her husband's return. She had few illusions about her marriage. Con had played the gallant to save her, with no intention of marrying her, really. Between herself and Renfro he had been catapulted into a publicity stunt that made a husband of him. Nevertheless, she argued, he need not insult her this way.

But because she loved him and because more than her pride was hurt by his indifference she burst into bitter sobs that shook her from head to foot.

DAYLIGHT crept under the blinds, streaking a pattern of yellow on the strip of carpet beside her bed. It made gray and bleak the whitewashed walls of the stateroom and showed the girl's swollen eyelids, the tense lines about her mouth, and the bluish pallor of her face.

Madeline rose, swaying dizzily, and stared at her reflection in the mirror. "My wedding night," she laughed grimly. "My wedding night! Well, the joke's on me! What a hag I look!"

She bathed her face in cold water, opened her makeup box and proceeded to rouge her cheeks and lips. When her appearance was improved she opened the stateroom door and peered into the aisle. It was still in darkness. A draft of cold air made her shiver. She lifted a shawl from the untouched berth, pulled it about her bare shoulders and then crept cautiously, noiselessly down the corridor. On right and left doors were closed, but from the slatted transoms issued snores and audible breathing.

She stepped out on the platform and stood in the chill morning air, letting the wind tangle her curls until her befooled senses cleared a trifle. Then she went into the next car. The smoking room door was ajar. Con, in his wedding suit, sprawled on the couch, one arm flung over his head, the other hanging limp at his side.

Her lips twisted as she stood looking at him. Then, with a half-defiant toss of her head, she entered the room, closed the door behind her and crossed to his side. She bent over him and placed her hand on his forehead.

He moved, opened his eyes, blinked in bewilderment and then sat upright. "Has the gang gone yet," he asked.

"Gone? It's morning. I didn't want any one to find you here. It might cause talk."

"Morning!" He looked towards the window. "Good Lord! Have I slept here all night?"

"You have."

"Oh, I'm sorry. Why did you let me?"

SHE turned her face away so he could not see the quivering of her chin and her tear-filled eyes. "I thought you did it on purpose."

"You know I didn't. I couldn't stand their racket and—"

"I know," she interrupted bitterly. "You were thinking how different everything would have been if Doonna were there instead of me."

"We won't speak of her," he said coldly. "If you're going to lay the blame on Doonna every time I do anything you dislike we'll get along about as peacefully as a lion and a tiger. I'm not used to staying awake much after midnight and I was tired. Maybe that doesn't seem much of an excuse to you—but I didn't intend to hurt you. You've got to believe that."

"If you loved me nothing could have kept you away from me last night," she said.

He took her hands and pulled her around, facing him. "Let's get this straight, Madeline. I never said I was crazy about you but I think you're a nice kid. I'm fond of you. You said you loved me and would take me just as I was. I'm no good at pretenses—and if I was I wouldn't make them. Too much of an effort. But there's no reason why we can't be happy together if you don't get false notions and jealousy in your head. Probably I'll make you a better husband than if I were mad about you. And I promise not to walk out on you again. Forgive me?"

"Yes."

He laughed and, bending, gave her a perfunctory kiss. She clung to him, her moist lips pressed against his. "I love you so," she sobbed. "I love you so terribly, Con."

"But you mustn't. Too much love only causes heartaches. I know from experience."

She drew back with a sharp intake of breath. "Donna!" she cried.

"Stop it. I was in love with her once, but that's dead. I wouldn't walk across the street to save her from perdition now. Just remember that when green devils get hold of you."

"You—hate her?" breathlessly.

"I certainly am not going to waste affection on another man's wife."

"Oh, let's get back to the stateroom before the others are awake."

"Maybe you can rustle some coffee. Gosh, I've got a head and I didn't drink anything."

THE trip was an unusually long one and the circus train did not arrive at its destination until after 10 o'clock. Long before that hour, however, in spite of the festivities that had kept them awake so late, most of the performers were moving about, busy at chores. Lines of stockings and handkerchiefs hung across the car aisle. Letters were written and clothing was mended. Band instruments were tuned and polished.

Con, who always attended Madeline when it was possible, asked Madeline if she wanted to accompany him. She agreed eagerly, but when she added that they might have a priest remarry them with a church ceremony, he frowned and said it could be done later when they played a longer engagement somewhere.

By one o'clock, when they returned from services, the tents had been raised and Con strolled off to inspect his cage of cats. While the men who cared for and fed the animals were to be trusted, Con never failed to visit them. An aching tooth, an ingrown nail or an irritating insect might cause his own death.

The new Bengal tiger, in a cage alone, snarled viciously and Madeline, beside her husband, shrank back with a little cry of terror.

Con laughed at her fears. "The poor thing is nasty because she isn't used to confinement. But isn't she a beauty? Don't believe I ever saw a handsomer animal. Wait until your spirit is broken, old lady," he added, leaning near the bars.

"Don't do that!" Madeline rasped. "That's no way to begin," he said, turning to her. "The first thing you have to do is to conquer your own fear. I think we'll have your first rehearsal this afternoon."

"Not today, Con! Wait until I'm not so nervous."

"If I do there'll never be a rehearsal. The only way to overcome nervousness is to take the bit between your teeth—now. Yes, after lunch we'll see how you can behave in a cage of lions."

Atlanta Defeats Hope Storks 8-1

Texans Hammer Two Local Pitchers for 14 Safeties

Atlanta pounded two Hope pitchers for 14 hits and scored an 8-to-1 victory over the Storks Thursday afternoon at Fair Park.

B. Henderson, hurling for the visitors, let the Storks down with six scattered bingles. Pettit, Atlanta shortstop, made two errors in the sixth, accounting for Hope's lone tally.

Besides his pitching, Henderson's hitting was a feature of the game, getting four safeties out of six times at bat. One of his hits was a home run over deep right-center fence.

Lefty Eubanks, starting his first game for the Storks, was knocked out of the box in the fifth. He was relieved by Carroll Schooley.

Hitting of Vernon Schooley was Hope's bright spot, getting three out of four which was half of the Storks' hits.

Fielding on both sides was erratic, Hope making six errors and Atlanta five.

The Storks will oppose Texarkana tiremen here Friday afternoon. The game starts at 4:30. Elliott will probably pitch.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Every woman, whatever her age, desires slim hips. With the bathing season so close at hand, a slender figure is especially desirable, so if you want to look your best in your new bathing suit get busy now with daily exercises.

Here is an excellent exercise that will help you to attain slim hips: Lie flat on the floor with arms stretched out at the sides—palms down. Ankles should be together. Keeping the spine and the back of the right hip flat on the floor, raise the left leg, cross it over the right one and point the toes. The leg and foot should be parallel to the right arm.

It sounds easy but it really will be quite hard for you when you begin. As you do it, notice how the muscles of the hips are pulled and stretched. Relax with ankles together and then reverse the exercise, crossing the right leg over the left. Repeat ten times the first day. After that, increase the number by five each time you do it.

Of course, if you're serious about reducing your hips, you'll watch your diet too. No rich desserts, you know, and a minimum of starches.

Java is one of the most thickly populated places in the world; 40,000,000 people occupy its less than 50,000 square miles.

Tinymite Plane Hailed as Craft for Thrifty Flying

A midget of the air, heralded by its designer as the answer to economy flying, is this "Knight Twister," piloted by Thomas Cushman. Built by V. W. Payne, former army aviation instructor, it weighs only 400 pounds, is 11½ feet long, and has a 15-foot wing spread. It is powered by a nine-cylinder French Salmson motor, and Payne claims a speed of 120 miles an hour, using only three gallons of gas an hour at that speed.

THREE-WHEELED "CAR OF FUTURE"

Resembling a whale out of water, here you see the Dymaxion, a three-wheeled vehicle being manufactured at Bridgeport, Conn., as "the car of the future." The invention of Buckminster Fuller, the patented model has two front wheels set midway in the oval body and one rear wheel, set in the tail, which does the steering, rudder-fashion. It uses little gasoline, but can travel 125 miles an hour.

Mother's Day

Twenty years ago this May 8th (how time does fly along!), the gentlemen of the Congress, with a surprising one-ness of mind, passed a joint resolution fixing the second Sunday in May as a memorial to the mothers of America, and ordered flags unfurled from all government buildings.

Next Sunday, accordingly, we celebrate Mother's Day, 1934, and we are reminded of the banking institution which issued a thrift calendar. For each day of the 365, some Scotch, money-canny proverb was placed beside the date. But along with Mother's Day just two words appeared: Be Extravagant!

Feeling that you subscribe to the same spirit about your own mother, we suggest that right here and now you start your gift-plans. Look through all the store announcements. Think of wearable things and home-usable things, plus a bouquet and a box of sweets.

Think of Grandmother as well as Mother and don't forget to gather up some cards for mothers-outside-your-family. You'll find our advertisers all ready to help you with ideas and prompt out-of-town deliveries.

Jury Hears Story of Wife's Suicide

"Other Woman" Testifies in Tragedy of Tangled Loves

CHICAGO. — (AP) — A young wife, dead by her own hand, supplied the answer Wednesday night to a question two young couples whose love lives were enmeshed had asked themselves: "How will it all end?" The husband of the dead woman at the other couple told a coroner's jury of the events which they believed caused Mrs. Elma Hamm, 25, to fire a bullet into her head Tuesday night.

The widower, Kenneth A. Hamm, who studies journalism evenings at Northwestern University, said he and his wife had often discussed his free love theories and his friendship with Mrs. Allie Nelson, 25, wife of a friend.

Yesterday Mrs. Hamm returned to her apartment and found Kenneth and Mrs. Nelson together. She offered to leave, but they told her to stay and that they would go.

"We drove for a couple of hours in Jackson park," said Hamm. "We discussed what would become of all of us. We asked ourselves, 'How is it going to end?'"

Mrs. Nelson repeated Hamm's story. Then Nelson, in a subdued voice, disclosed that Hamm's affection for Mrs. Nelson had been no secret to him.

"I've known the Hamm's for five years, ever since we met at a reunion of the alumni of the college we all attended at Chillicothe, Mo. I first knew of it a month ago when he told me Allie would come to him when he said the word. I didn't believe it. We never talked about it since, but I have gone through tortures wondering 'How is it going to end?'"

Nelson said the young widower was a romantic character trying to live the short stories he wrote and unable to distinguish between facts and imagination. Hamm, he said, was interested in psychology and often asked about free love, but Nelson thought it was a lot of "hosh."

His arm around the slight figure of his wife, Nelson declared: "I have always loved my wife. I love her now. I always will." The jury in routine fashion wrote: "Suicide while temporarily insane, due to domestic troubles."

Laneburg

The Central High school Home Economics girls entertained their mothers with a beautifully appointed luncheon Wednesday at noon.

In this way the mothers are given an insight into the work the girls are doing in this class.

Miss Heath the Nevada county home demonstration agent was a special guest and gave a talk about "Mothers."

Miss Chloe Galloway was toastmistress and the following program was given:

Welcome Mothers, Marguerite McGough.

Response from a mother, Mrs. Wadde.

"Dreams of Mother," a duet, Mary and Lucy Stokes.

"Mother's," Miss Katherine Heath.

Piano solo, Miss Mildred Loomis.

Reading, Doris Sherman.

Song, "Pick up the Dishes," by group.

Places were laid for 35, including the lady faculty members of the school.

A color scheme of pink and green was carried out in the menu, flowers and favors. Pink gingham mint cups and green candles helped carry out this effect. The menu also was carried out in the color scheme.

Small informal groups were formed by seating of two mothers and two daughters at each table, thus creating a more family style.

This luncheon was served in two courses by the tight grade home economic girls.

A mother's tea will be given Friday afternoon with the Junior High School Economic girls as hostesses. The seventh grade will preside over the serving. The P. T. A. and all the mothers of this school are invited to attend.

Miss Coral McCune is home economic instructor, Laneburg Central High School and sponsors these affairs.

Drouth Is Killing 13 States' Wheat

Wallace Alarmed as West Faces New Crisis Like That of 1930

CHICAGO—Failure of predicted showers for the Middle West to arrive Wednesday brought new alarm over the country as record high temperatures inaugurated a new and even more critical drouth wave. Official forecasters were unable to find any indications that the prolonged and extensive dryness would be broken soon.

Dust storms, which in some cases hid the sun from view, accompanied the excessive heat throughout the grain belts of the United States and Canada.

In Washington Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said the effect of the drouth on the wheat belt could not be accurately estimated, but that a heavy crop reduction is in prospect. He denied earlier reports that he had forecast only a little more than half of a normal wheat crop. An estimate of the damage to the crops will be given Thursday in the monthly crop bulletins.

"So far this year weather conditions are more serious than in 1930 when similar weather prevailed," Wallace said.

The drouth that has lowered the rivers and lakes to record low levels for the season has stopped the flow of wells over wide areas. At Creston, Ia., a ban has been laid down on watering lawns, gardens or washing vehicles, with a fine up to $100 for violations. The Burlington railroad is using 25 tank cars to augment the dwindling water supplies there.

Farmers are rationing feed to their livestock over wide areas of the Midwest, with pastures burned as though in August. Corn has been planted earlier than usual and has not shown the injury accorded wheat and oats. Some farmers are planting their corn deeper than usual. Most of the corn crop lies ungerminated in the drouth. There hasn't been a real spring rain in a wide area around Chicago, records reveal. J. R. Lloyd of the local Weather Bureau, declared that "the damage has already, or will soon, run into the hundreds of millions of dollars to farmers, gardeners and city home owners."

Temperatures of 98 and 99 were reported in the Northwest Wednesday. Dust and sand storms occurred over wide areas, at Fairmont, Minn., the swirling drifts piling up along fence rows and hedges.

Airship Macon Is Ruled "Destroyed"

Aircraft "Get" Her in Navy War Game—But This Was Expected

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The naval high command Wednesday night awaited detailed reports which may determine airships' future worth to the American fleet.

Through the strict censorship surrounding secret maneuvers of the fleet in the Caribbean came a message to the department saying that umpires of the fleet exercises had adjudged the airship Macon theoretically "destroyed" by "enemy aircraft."

Secretary Swanson said the giant airship was returning to Miami in its temporary base where it would undergo repairs for minor damage suffered in the maneuvers.

Widely circulated reports that the secretary had declared the Macon a failure were denied by the secretary's office.

The problem which the naval command must solve from the report of the umpires will be whether the Macon fulfilled its mission of discovering the theoretical "enemy's" fleet and reported its position or such other information as it had been sent out to ascertain before being destroyed.

The theory, held by many experts, is that a ship the size of the Macon would be expected to be destroyed in wartime after it fulfilled its mission by cruising over the large radius of which it is capable and reporting the enemy's movements.

Being equipped with only five airplanes, its offensive power is at the minimum, but its wide cruising radius and speed afford it an unusual superiority over airplanes or even ships as an observer.

HARRY GRAYSON

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Spring practice has ended at old Notre Dame where there is more football enthusiasm than at any time since Knute K. Rockne fell to his untimely death. The principal reason for a spirit reborn is the slim-bodied Elmer Layden, who has returned to lead his alma mater back to its former gridiron glory.

Layden confides that his only worry is his quarterback and guards. Pick fellow, he only has 225 athletes to pick from. And only eight complete sets of backs from which to select a signal caller.

He no doubt will struggle along somehow, for the Davenport Irishman comes back to the campus from which he rode as one of the immortal Four Horsemen with a splendid record as a coach and organizer at Columbia College, of Duquesne, and Duquesne.

R-O-C-K-N-E was stamped all over the master's carriers of 1934. Three of them, Layden, Jim Crowley, of Fordham, and Hurry Up, Harry Stuhldreher, of Villa Nova, are outstanding successes following in the footsteps of the man they so greatly admired.

The other, Don Miller, easily might have been had he devoted all of his time to teaching the game he played so well.

As it was, Miller was an invaluable assistant to Bill Alexander at Georgia Tech and Sam Willaman at Ohio State, spending four seasons at each institution before his local business demands all of his attention in Cleveland, where he is the partner of his brother, Ray T., who was defeated there last fall when he sought to be re-elected mayor.

Old Teammate Laudys Layden. Don Miller is very close to Layden. They completed law courses together and lived in the same hall at school.

"I never met a finer chap than Elmer Layden," says his running mate of college days. "He and Harry Stuhldreher were the most intelligent and thorough football men I ever was my privilege to play with. If any coach can regain the prestige that was Notre Dame's under Knute Rockne, that coach is Layden. He was a fine student and one of the most conscientious chaps with whom I ever came in contact."

"Already he is respected and liked, which I knew he would be. That's the most important thing in coaching. If kids don't respect and like a coach, he might as well give up."

As serious as he is, Layden has a keen sense of humor. I always get a chuckle out of a remark he made when a small army of Nebraska forwards sieved through our line in '24. Layden weighed only 160 pounds, and the big Cornhuskers were piled on top of his like cordwood.

"Mr. Birch, will you please tell the crowd to go back in the stands," cracked Layden, as Frank Birch, the referee, strove to get his hands on the ball.

Back to Salmon and Eichenlaub. One has to look at Layden's legs for the source of the power that was his when he was making Wykoff-like starts and lugging lines for first downs.

The upper part of his body appears to be anything but that of a once vicious charger. That and their gaunt faces give one the idea that Gil Dobbs must have looked something like Layden in his younger days, although the net Southern football strategist is not as tall as the Scot.

Performance of Firestone Leads

1934 High-Speed Tire Said to Be Company's Best

According to Chas. Harrell of Hope Auto company, local Firestone dealer, the new Firestone High Speed Tire for 1934 is the last word in tire construction—it is the greatest tire Firestone ever built.

"In no product today is there wider performance difference than in the various makes of tires at high speeds," Mr. Harrell said. "No other product is more vital for safety of motorists. The 500-mile race of past years at the Indianapolis speedway was recognized as a race of tires. To keep the tread on the body of the tire was the greatest problem due to the terrific strain and the heat generated by internal friction at high speeds. Gum-Dipping was the answer of Firestone engineers."

"In the recent series of stock car and road races in California, Firestone tires have always been on the winning cars. They are the same kind of tires the motorist purchases from his local dealer. All the great racing drivers are familiar with occasions when a driver using another make of tires had to slow up or stop at the pits for a tire change on account of tread separation. The thicker the tread the more heat it holds in the tire—unless the body construction guards against internal friction heat."

"Gum-Dipping, the high stretch cords gives the adhesion which welds the tire into one strong unit. This made it possible for Firestone to develop the first successful balloon tire in 1923, and has made possible other developments which have brought leadership based on performance. With the amazing advancement of tire safety and mileage, Firestone has always sought efficient production so that the motorist would pay no premium."

attracted more notice than any other player in the spring drills. Members of the old guard went way back to Red Salmon and Ray Eichenlaub in their ecstasy over the young full-back.

George Melinkovich, who alternated at fullback with Steve Banas in 1932, and Abe Zoss, huge center, are back in the thick of things after being out a year. Melinkovich nearly died as the result of an infection.

Hunk Anderson had a tough time following Rockne, as any tutor would have had, and a preliminary close-up of the 1934 varsity leads one to believe that opponents henceforth will have a tough time following Notre Dame.

State Finds Morphine Responsible for Hospital Outbreak

LITTLE ROCK.—With arrests of two men Wednesday, federal agents said that they had solved the mystery as to how patients at the State Hospital have been securing morphine.

Those arrested were Dr. M. F. Powell, 74, a licensed physician, and Ed Scroggins, 42, a ground parole patient at the hospital. The agents said that Scroggins was arrested while he was delivering a package of morphine to the hospital.

The arrests were a result of an investigation begun more than six months ago after Grady McCall, secretary to Governor Futrell, had discovered that inmates were obtaining morphine when he spent several days at the hospital investigating a break in which 11 patients escaped.

Dr. Powell was arraigned before United States Commissioner Charles Jacobson and released on bond. Scroggins was held in the Pulaski county jail Wednesday night, but will be arraigned before Commissioner Jacobson Thursday morning.

Mr. McCall said he noticed that several inmates were "hopped up" when he investigated the break last fall. Investigation revealed that morphine was being obtained by a large number of patients. He asked the federal narcotics agents to investigate. The agents, aided by J. H. Parker, superintendent of the hospital, Dr. C. Arkhauer, medical director, and other hospital officials, began work on the case. They said they trailed Scroggins several times as he left the grounds, visited the doctor's home, and returned again to the hospital. The agents said they believe that most of the morphine was tied to strings which patients lowered with money attached.

Most of the morphine was taken by the patients with the aid of "home

Scroggins, a resident of Little Rock, was an inmate of the hospital for about 20 months. The agents said he had been delivering the morphine to patients at the institution for approximately eight months. As a ground parole inmate, he had been allowed the freedom of the grounds.

Strange Blood Disease Mostly in Childhood

Lately you might have read about children in whom the white blood cells were increasing in amount so that death occurred rather promptly thereafter. The condition is called leukemia, leukocythemia, and a variety of other names.

The cause of this strange malady is unknown. It is so severe a disease that the child usually dies within one week to two months after it begins. Acute leukemia occurs most frequently in childhood, although it may occur at any age.

Normally a human being has about 7500 white blood cells in every cubic millimeter of blood. In the condition called leukemia the white blood cells increase very rapidly in amount and may reach figures of from 100,000 to 1,000,000 white blood cells for every cubic millimeter of blood.

As the white blood cells increase, the red blood cells decrease and the red coloring matter of the red blood cells breaks down. Under such conditions death usually follows.

Obviously in a condition of this type, the doctor does everything that he possibly can to sustain the body against the attack with the hope that eventually it will be able to throw off the disturbance by the process of nature which tends toward recovery in the most disease conditions.

Hence, the chief method of treating this type of disease is to inject blood into the body directly through a vein, with the hope that the injected blood will provide the necessary attacking elements and also with the hope that the new blood supply will be able to take care of the needs of the body which arise because its red blood cells have been destroyed.

As you have no doubt noted from reports, these blood transfusions may be given in considerable numbers.

Sometimes the X-ray has been used to control the excess activity of the bone marrow in which the white blood cells are formed. However, the reactions to such treatment sometimes are so prominent that it may be necessary to give repeated blood transfusions before using the X-ray, so the patient may be able to withstand the results of the treatment.

This type of disease has been known to the medical profession for a long time. While these cases may have a morbid interest for many of us, they are not new to doctors and they are fully discussed in most textbooks of the practice of medicine.

"know her onions" literally these days because this vegetable which stands third among the truck-garden crops of the United States is of high food value. A thorough understanding of its virtues and many uses aids us in planning nourishing and attractive meals at small cost. Modern research has explained the truth of the old saw "Eat onions in May, and all the year after the doctors may play."

New onions come under the head of succulent vegetables. As a source of vitamins and mineral salts they rank with the best of the leafy vegetables. The "dry" winter onions differ con-

Tops Have Vitamin A

It's worth keeping in mind that the tops of spring onions are an excellent source of vitamin A and should therefore be used rather than thrown away. Carefully washed, crisped and shredded, they can be combined with other vegetables to give an appetizing tang to the mixture. Mince onion tops combined with cottage cheese is a good combination for a salad.

The tender spring onions are much easier to digest than the strong-jointed dry ones and are a splendid raw food for this reason. When cooked they naturally are less flavory than the winter varieties and make a delicate and inviting vegetable.

If you have never served green onions in a rich cream sauce on toast you can enjoy the thrill of something new. Cook them with two or three inches of the green top remaining above the white part in boiling salted water until tender. Use some of this water in the sauce. Then make a rich cream sauce and pour over onions arranged on hot toast. If topped with poached eggs, this makes an appetizing main dish for supper or luncheon. Grated cheese added to the sauce increases the protein content.

lent. Or sprinkle grated cheese over onions and sauce on toast and put into a hot oven long enough to melt the cheese.

New onions make good sandwiches, too. Cut the little onions in thin slices, and spread evenly on thin slices of buttered bread. Sprinkle lightly with salt, cover with buttered bread, trim off crusts and serve.

Onion and Orange Salad
This is a zesty combination that makes a splendid dinner salad. It's particularly good with duckling or any kind of fowl.

One-half cup ice water, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 Bermuda onion, 2 large oranges, 2 tablespoons minced mint.

Mix water, lemon juice, sugar and mint. Peel onion and cut in thin slices. Put into water mixture and let stand on ice for one hour. Drain. Cut oranges before peeling. Peel and cut in thin slices. Arrange alternating slices of onion and orange on crisp lettuce leaves. Sprinkle with minced mint and serve with French dressing.
